A VALLE'S STEAK HOUSE, part of a restaurant-motel complex to be constructed overlooking Rt. 93 at the River Rd. exit.

Valle Steak House-Motel Is Proposed

Donald E. Valle and representatives of his organization will meet with the Board of Selectman Thursday to discuss the restaurateur's plans for construction of a combination steak house and motel in Andover.

Valle has signed a sales agreement with Catherine G. Shattuck for 21 acres of the old Shattuck farm on River Rd., a pasture parcel that stands just opposite the familiar farm house.

LITTLE LEAGUE TRYOUTS COMING

Senior Division Little League tryouts will be held Saturday and Sunday at the Andover playstead.

Applicants may pick up registration forms at the Junior High School.

The time schedule for both days will be: 13-year-olds, 1-2:30 p.m.; 14-year-olds, 2:30-4 p.m.; fifteen-year-olds, 4-5:30 p.m.

Planned is a complex worth an estimated $1.5 million, including 192 motel units laid out in four buildings of 48 each. Valle, in making the announcement, said the steak house will have banquet room facilities for 600 and will cover an area of 23,000 square feet.

Valle estimates that the restaurant itself will employ 125 to 140 people and the motor hotel another 20 to 25. "The business will bring a million dollar payroll to Andover," he said.

Valle, a restaurant man for 30 years, said he selected the Andover site because it is located off "the best cloverleaf" on northern-bound Route 93. He calls it the "easiest and least confusing" access to a suitable location.

An equally significant asset is the fact that the plot is within an industrial zone that incorporates an estimated 600 acres on the Valle-side of Route 93 and another 400 or so acres on the opposite side.

• The School Committee will meet both June 1 and 2. At the June 1 meeting, Director of Guidance William J. Igou will report. At the June 2 meeting, Lauriston Ward, curriculum coordinator, will submit a written report prepared earlier for the committee but withheld after Supt. Edward L. Erickson objected to its release before he and Ward could confer on its contents.

Personnel Policy Set In 88 Pages Of Rules

Completed and ready for June 1 application is a massive set of town personnel rules and regulations, the last big project Manager Richard Bowen promised immediate attention when he came here last July.

The 88 page guide incorporates the classification and pay plan, some new approaches to personnel practices and many procedures that have been followed in Andover but never spelled out. "I'm not saying they are perfect," Manager Bowen said in discussing the completed rules. "But," he added, "they establish a body of rules, a personnel policy, committed to writing." This is something the town has never had.

Basic to the policy is the emphasis on merit; on caution in the hiring of town personnel, recognition of performance and protection for the proved employee.

The rules say, explains Bowen: "Let's be careful about who we select to work for the town of Andover. Let's be sure about him in the job and then let's assure him that as long as his work is satisfactory, he doesn't have to worry about being kicked in the

Trash Pick-Up Starts Monday

The schedule for homeowner rubbish collections during Clean-Up Week May 24-28 was set this week by Manager Richard Bowen and Highway Supt. Stanley Chlebowski.

The town will put its equipment into action Monday, tackling pickups in precincts three and four on that day. Stops will be made in precincts one and two on Tuesday and in precincts five and six on Wednesday.

Musical Antiques Spark Historic Society Show

It is difficult to keep both feet in the Twentieth Century if you are a visitor to the Andover Historical Society while it is exhibiting musical instruments and books dating to the beginnings of religious and secular performances in this community.

The mood is set by the quiet playing of recorded hymns of the period and in the society's ground floor rooms are displayed what is, for a small museum, an impressive collection of historic musical items.

Probably the rarest are two small, yellowed books found in Fred Cheever's attic after the idea of a music "show" had already been formulated. One is the work of Thomas Walker, 1696-1725 of Roxbury, a grandson of Increase and a nephew of Cotton Mather. His "Grounds & Rules of Music Explained" and Bayley's "Essex Harmony" serve, according to the society's curator, "to connect the Andover of their time with contemporary movements in music of the pre-Revolutionary period."

Displayed with these and other volumes is one on loan from the Boston Athenaeum which includes the plaintive "Lamentation Over Boston". It is the expression, in hymn form, of William Billings' emotions about the Boston siege and in it he paraphrases the 137th Psalm.

Billings, a Boston tanner who lived in the period 1746-1800, is sometimes called the first American composer worthy of the name.

The freedom with which he expressed himself is evident in these words from the fugue, Lamentations: "By the rivers of Water-town, we sat down and wept . . . when we remembered thee O Boston . . . As for our Friends, Lord God of Heaven, preserve them, defend them . . . and restore them unto us. . ."

"God Forbid it that those who have sucked Bostonian breasts should thirst for American

In the instrument exhibit are an 18th Century bassoon played by a Simon Flanders at the North Parish Church in what is now North Andover; several wooden flutes with brass fittings; fifes, one of which was played by Sylvester Abbott and lent to the show by his granddaughter Miss C. Madeleine Hewes; some flageolets and clarinets.

There is a brass trombone, a rare and minute brass hunting horn and a cornet.

The collection is filled out with programs from early events featuring musical performances, photographs of such groups as the Andover Brass Band (1880) and another musical organization caught informally on the steps of the Hotel de Blunt in 1887.

And there is a special display of items on Lowell Mason, author of "Nearer My God To Thee", who once taught at Andover Theological Seminary and was here in 1857 when he worked with two professors on his "Sabbath Hymn and Tune Book."

Teachers Elect Murphy To Top Association Job

Andover teachers met Tuesday evening at Rolling Green Motor Inn to elect officers and pay tribute to four teachers, three retiring and one retired.

Members of the Andover Teachers Assoc. named James Murphy, head of the math department at the high school, to take the president's post, held this year by Richard Neal of the junior high school guidance department.

Also elected were: George Walsh, Sanborn School, vice president; Dorothy Minzner, Sanborn School, re-elected secretary; and Miss Alice Dunn, West School, treasurer.

Both the School Committee and the association recognized the long service of retiring teachers Miss L. Evelyn Parker and Miss Eunice Stack. Inaugurating a new policy of special recognition for teachers retiring after more than 25 years service, the Committee presented sterling silver Revere bowls to these women. Earlier this month, both received 25-year pins at the Founders' Day banquet held to honor all long-term town employees.

Miss Parker, on the math staff at Andover Junior High School, came to the local system in 1927. Prior to that she taught three years in Farmington, N. H. She stayed her full career at the junior high school where for a period she was head of the mathematics department, a post she resigned at the end of the last term.

Miss Stack has been teaching Andover elementary school students since 1921 when she came here from two-years in the Norwood system. She is currently assigned to the sixth grade at Stowe School.

The association additionally honored Miss Alice Stack, a sister to Miss Eunice Stack, who is expected to announce her retirement with the end of the current school year. She has been on sick leave through this term.

Having served more than 40 years, Miss Stack's history with the Andover system dates to 1924. Prior to that she taught three years in Plalstow, N. H. Her last Andover assignment was to the fourth grade at Central School.

Belated recognition was given Miss Ida Grover who announced her resignation at the end of last year's term. Miss Grover, a former Latin teacher at the high school, came to Andover in 1933 prior to which she taught three years in Mendon, Mass.

POLICY DETAILED FOR PERSONNEL

Eight items form the core of what is new (for Andover) in the body of rules and regulations: 1. Stated in writing is the fact that the town intends to "select" its employees, that it will recruit and examine prospects.

2. Established is merit as the basis for advancement and continued employment as well as causes. Department heads are made responsible for the initial judgments in these areas and written recommendations are required in support of their judgment.

3. When an employee's advancement in non-supervisory positions is involved, the recommendation must certify that the man's service has been "entirely satisfactory" at least six months just prior to the effective date of the proposed hike. Recommendations for men in supervisory jobs must be based upon a record that has been "superior and in excess of requirements."

4. Spelled out is a formal procedure for hiring which is Civil Service-like in certain features. For example, competitive examinations (assembled or unassembled) can be required and, depending upon the opening to be filled, may include a written test, an oral interview and/or test, a performance test, physical tests where bodily condition, muscular strength etc. are factors, and mental tests.

5. Also Civil Service-like, the rules call for a six-month probationary period for all classified jobs and it will take a department head's written recommendation to put the employee on a permanent status.

6. The rules call for a three-man Personnel Appeals Board (not yet appointed), named by the manager to hear appeals submitted by employees on suspensions, demotions or dismissals. "This," explains Bowen, "is recourse for non-Civil Service employees if they are disciplined. Up to now, they have had none."

The rules also detail what the grounds for disciplinary action are i.e. conviction for a felony, membership in a subversive organization, brutality or cruelty to an inmate or prisoner of a town institution, unbecoming conduct, drunkenness on the job, insubordination...

Bowen fully expects some may take issue with his appeals procedure (and incidentally, there are provisions in the rules for suggestions on improvements both from employees and citizens), objecting to the fact that the rules will permit him to name all three members of the appeals board.

He feels, however, that by establishing the board he is self-imposing a limitation on his powers, something the charter doesn't require. As to the suggestion that perhaps employees should name one member of the appeals group, Bowen's reaction is that this would be like asking the condemned man to pick members of the jury. And, he points out, if a disciplined employee is dubious about the kind of a hearing he can get from the board privately, he has the right to ask that the proceedings be open to the public.

6. The rules incorporate the grievance procedure established some months ago which gives an employee an established pattern to follow in taking a gripe from his immediate supervisor to his department head to the manager in looking for satisfaction.

7. Included is a section on conduct - a sort of code of ethics

- which covers such items as outside employment, Moonlighters must have approval from their department heads for just two reasons: so that the prospect of a conflict of interest can be ruled out and so that the town can be assured that any second job will not interfere with a man's municipal duties or create a physical hazard.

8. The policy gives employees the right and the chance to set up an Employees' Advisory Committee of five, non-supervisory people. The committee's job would be to open and keep open a line of communication between the employees and the administration with the "objective of improving and furthering the working relationship necessary to carry out satisfactorily the functions and services of town government;" to "provide a media for the interchange of ideas..." and to provide an outlet for free discussion on policies, programs etc.

This committee, if employees want it, would be named through a popular election, the first one to be held any time 10 percent of the town's permanent employees petition for it.

The existence of such a committee, says the manager, would not shut his door to the Town Employees Assoc. but would strengthen communications overall by opening the door to spokesmen for the full body of employees, association members and non-members.

Copies of the rules and regulations are being whipped into spiral bindings and will be available for department heads and employee groups almost immediately, Bowen said Tuesday. The library, the town clerk, the Board of Selectmen and the Finance Committee are among others to receive copies.

Rogers Elected For Fifth Term

Irving E. Rogers, publisher of the Andover Townsman and the Lawrence Eagle-Tribune, will serve a fifth term as president of the Greater Lawrence Boys' Club. He was elected at the club's 74th annual meeting.

Other key officials were also re-elected including:

G. Warren Hamblet Jr., Albert P. Manzi and Joseph A. Torrissi, vice president; Ernest W. Roebuck, treasurer; and John J. Hogan, secretary.

An Andover resident, Harry Loebel, was one of three new members named to the board. Loebel is manager of the local Raytheon Co. plant. Also elected to the board were Aaron Feuerstein, president of Malden Spinning Co. and Harry N. Snook, manager of the Merrimack Valley Works of Western Electric Co.

The association additionally honored Miss Alice Stack, a sister to Miss Eunice Stack, who is expected to announce her retirement with the end of the current school year. She has been on sick leave through this term.

Having served more than 40 years, Miss Stack's history with the Andover system dates to 1921. Prior to that she taught three years in Plaistow, N. H. Her last Andover assignment was to the fourth grade at Central School.

Belated recognition was given Miss Ida Grover who announced her resignation at the end of last year's term. Miss Grover, a former Latin teacher at the high school, came to Andover in 1930 prior to which she taught three years in Mendon, Mass.

Latin Club Banquets In The Roman Manner

The Latin Club at Andover Junior High School served its fifth annual Roman banquet to 100 students and guests Thursday.

On the menu were the "eggs to apples" items that Romans consumed in their earlier version of what Americans consider a "soup to nuts" meal.

Hosts and hostesses for the banquet were the schools' Latin teachers, Mrs. Marion Chittum and Asst. Principal Mrs. Walter Partridge and officers of the Latin Club including Linda Sagaser, president; David Konjolan, vice president; Corrine Broderick, Steve Willett and Cathy Palmer.

After dinner speakers were Dr. Alston Chase, head of the classics department at Phillips Academy and Miss Lynda Fitzgerald, president of the high school Latin Club.

The meal was prepared by a five-mother committee headed by Mrs. Frances Drew, head of the household arts department. Serving "slaves" were eighth grade honor students, Daniel Keub, David Sagaser, Gary Johnson, Gary Smith, Steve Sullivan, Cathy Parker, Paula Eichner and Chris Prentiss.

The students entertained with production of a myth translated from the Latin by Mrs. Partridge's class and dramatized in Anthony Carpenito's intensive composition course.

Also on the program was a gladiator's fight between James Volker, James Hershon and Wayne Thompson with Edward Becker posing as the sponsor, Julius Caesar.

Jan Newhouse struck a gong to announce the evening's events, Dana Nelson and Robert Curry served as "wine" mixers and Paul Hicks and Gary Gulezian brought the suckling pig to the diners.

AJH Announces Arts Festival

On Thursday evening, May 27, the annual Junior High School Musical Clubs Concert and Arts Festival will be held on the campus of the school.

The Arts Festival, featuring samples of student accomplishments covering a wide range of interests, will begin at 6:30 p.m. in the town park which adjoins the school grounds.

At 7:15 the open-air concert will begin with over 800 junior high school choral voices sounding forth from the steps of the school's Memorial Auditorium. Accompanying the choral groups will be the 90-piece junior high school orchestra. In addition to selections by the combined choral group there will be selections by the ninth grade choral society of mixed voices, ninth grade boys and girls glee clubs, and seventh and eighth grade boys choir.

Last year's concert drew over 1000 spectators and an even larger number is anticipated this year.

Board Hears Giles' Plans

C. Lincoln Giles' request for a zoning variance which would permit construction of 71 apartments in the old Tyer Rubber Co. warehouse on Main St. was taken under advisement by the appeals board last week.

Giles told the board that one-third of the brick building stands in an industrial zone where multiple dwellings are not allowed. He would like permission to put apartments throughout rather than try to combine industry and residential units under one roof.

Explaining that he plans to run the building like a hotel, with a common lobby and services, Giles said he would provide parking but that he plans a car-rental service which would cut down on the need for an expansive lot. Rents are to run between $110 and $250.

Granville C. Guild appeared at the same hearing to request a variance which would allow construction of a double garage nearer a lot line than the legal requirement. Guild said he could put the garage elsewhere on the lot, but it would necessitate the cutting of a valuable spruce tree.

Board Chairman Alfred Fuller was sympathetic, but suggested Guild look again for an alternate location on the lot. He pointed out that on another occasion the board had to give a negative ruling in a similar case involving a tree in Shawsheen.

Other requests:

• From Thomas J. Dye, 1 Cheever Cir., for a lot line variance to permit construction of an addition to his home.

• From Charles Cyr of Lawrence for the Lanam Club, a special permit for construction of two paddle tennis courts.

• Withdrawn, a request from R. Milton Cole, Cole Paint & Hardware Co., Inc., for a new sign variance. Since it appeared that the board would not give a favorable ruling, Cole preferred to withdraw his request and make plans for a new sign, that would conform to regulation standards.

ILLUSTRATION FROM EMPLOYEE INFORMATION SHEET

Employees Understanding Of Survey Is Questioned

(A Townsman News Feature)

How much did town employees know about the classification and pay plan study before J. L. Jacobs & Co. of Chicago sent its man into town to survey? Did they understand what it was all about?

This has become a point at issue in the survey made by the Town Employees' Assoc. and a spokesman for that group has suggested that perhaps workers didn't know enough about what was going on to respond adequately to job-study questions.

Asked if, for a certainty, he could say that all town employees covered by the new compensation and pay plan were fully informed about the study and its intent, Manager Richard Bowen said he could guarantee nothing. But he did produce copies of some of the literature distributed as his proof that employees had an opportunity to be informed.

Of chief interest is a sheet labeled "The Real Facts about the Position Classification and Pay Study."

It leads off with the report that Jacobs has been contracted to "assist" with bringing the town's classification and salary program up to date.

It follows with this statement: "The purpose of this study is to see that all employees receive adequate salaries and LIKE PAY FOR LIKE WORK."

Spelled out is the step by step procedure, from the collecting of data on the specific duties of each job, to the supervisor's evaluation of the minimum qualifications and training necessary in each instance, to the evaluation and classification.

Further detailed were the main items to be considered in analyzing jobs:

1. Previous education and experience needed to properly perform the job duties.
2. Responsibilities for equipment, money, supervision of employees, etc.
3. Mental skills and knowledge required for job performance.
4. Physical condition necessary to perform duties of the job.
5. Working conditions during performance of job duties.

As a summary, the explanation sheet states that adoption of the resulting classification and pay plan will assure these main benefits:

1. Uniform titles, with like pay for like work, for all positions.
2. Class specifications describing the current main duties and responsibilities and specifying the qualification requirements.
3. Schematic salary schedules based on prevailing salaries in the community.
4. Identification of main lines of promotion providing career opportunities for employees.
5. Efficient and sound basis for budgeting for personnel services.

The four-man committee named last week by Atty. Irving Newman to tabulate results of an employee survey on the Jacobs report has not yet scheduled a meeting, but Newman said Wednesday that he expects to get members together within a week.

The survey was an attempt to measure employee understanding of the classification and pay plan study and their degree satisfaction with its implementation.

Permits Out To 2 Schools

Permits for improvements and additions to two Andover educational institutions have been issued.

Planned for St. Francis Seminary, River Rd., is $152,000 worth of interior alterations to meet state Department of Public Safety requirements.

And immediate construction is planned at Phillips Academy of additions to two buildings in the West quadrangle.

Expansions valued at $75,000 each will add both a game room and a common room to the two dorms, Adams and Taylor Hall. Still to be issued is a permit for construction of a new PA dorm, Nathan Hale Hall.

TOWN TO HELP WITH CLEAN-UP

established to preclude the possibility that homeowners might like the idea of unloading some bulky white elephants.

Rubbish left for collection must be of a size that it can be picked up by two men. "No pianos, please," says the manager. Ruled out too is debris from wholesale destruction of a garage, barn etc.

Homeowners should pile their trash at the edge of the street or as close there as possible. Bowen said items left elsewhere will not be collected. And all items for pick-up should be out by 7 a.m.

If rain should interfere, the schedule may have to be modified. However the time will be extended if the work load is so heavy that precincts are not completed as planned.

The manager has said flatly, however, that no call backs will be permitted. If homeowners miss the deadline for their precinct, they cannot expect the truck to swing back for a later pick-up, he said.

The home pick-up service has been planned to coordinate with the town's initial attempt to spur community interest in cleaning, painting, repairing etc. during the month of May.

Andover Senior Receives Auxiliary Scholarship

Miss Pamela Burnham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Burnham, 2 Washington Ave., has been selected to receive one of seven nursing scholarships awarded by the Women's Auxiliary of the Essex North District Medical Society.

The award was made by Mrs. Joseph Paladino, incoming president, at the auxiliary's annual meeting.

Miss Burnham, a senior at Andover High School, is a member of the girls field hockey, gymnastics, and softball teams and the Girls' Band. For the past four years she has been on the volunteer staff at Lawrence General Hospital and is a member of Lawrence Assembly #15, Order of Rainbow Girls.

The auxiliary was told by its retiring president, Mrs. James Whitten of Amesbury, that more scholarships than usual this year were possible because of successful fund raising events including a recent champagne tea at the home of Mrs. Leslie Joffe, Andover. Elected at the meeting were the following local women: Mrs. Robert C. Ramsdell, treasurer and Mrs. Roger Eckfeldt, vice president. Named to serve on state committees were Mrs. Leslie Joffe, program co-chairman and

MISS PAMELA BURNHAM

Mrs. Edmond R. Melucci, publicity co-chairman, also of Andover.

Members of the Essex auxiliary attended a Wednesday fashion show and luncheon at the Algonquin Club in Boston honoring the new president of the Women's Auxiliary to the Massachusetts Medical Society, Mrs. John B. Butts, Worcester.

In the group were Mrs. Charles Currier, Mrs. Paladino, Mrs. Joffe and Mrs. Melucci.

TOWN TO HELP WITH CLEAN-UP

Established to preclude the possibility that homeowners might file the idea of unloading some bulky white elephants.

Rubbish left for collection must be of a size that it can be picked up by two men. "No pianos, please," says the manager. Rubbed out too is debris from wholesale destruction of a garage, barn etc.

Homeowners should pile their trash at the edge of the street or as close there as possible. Bowen said items left elsewhere will not be collected. And all items for pick-up should be out by 7 a.m.

If rain should interfere, the schedule may have to be modified. However the time will be extended if the work load is so heavy that precincts are not completed as planned.

The manager has said flatly, however, that no call backs will be permitted. If homeowners miss the deadline for their precinct, they cannot expect the truck to swing back for a later pick-up, he said.

The home pick-up service has been planned to coordinate with the town's initial attempt to spur community interest in cleaning, painting, repairing etc., during the month of May.

A quick solution to a theft case was provided Monday within minutes of the time Philip Park Jr., 235 Beacon St. reported his Chevrolet missing.

Park called police at 7:45 a.m. to say that the car had been taken from his yard.

Shortly afterward a second caller informed police that what turned out to be Park's auto was parked behind St. Joseph's Church in Ballardvale. Further investigation indicates that the car, driven by a man, crashed into a tree on Andover St. about 1 a.m. Monday.

Additional witnesses are sought.

Still Burning

It may be possible to ban books in Boston, and movies and dancing on Sunday, but apparently it is impossible to ban burning at the dump!

Manager Richard Bowen has tried, and his failure to get results with an uncompromising administrative directive is one of the major frustrations of his local career.

The staff at the so-called sanitary land fill understands the edict perfectly and responds to it with vigor. They have made great progress with pushing the debris around to improve the looks of abandoned dump areas and limit the scope of the mess.

But the public, long loud in its protests over the sight and the stench of a burning dump, has proved less pliable. Manager Bowen has been called out to survey the billowing black smoke of so many citizen-instigated fires in recent months that he is beginning to think the town is burdened with pyromaniacs. Or are the blazes lit by little old ladies destroying the letters of a dead romance . . . or by cautious businessmen spring cleaning office files . . . or by well-meaning meddlers who just want to neaten things up a bit? Or are the firebugs youngsters who can weasel around the fence after hours and have the fun of starting a glorious holocaust?

Whoever and whatever, the trouble created is a costly nuisance. It means that the fire department must pull equipment away from headquarters that at any moment could be needed to fight a more important blaze. It means that men at the dump, if fires occur when they are on duty, must desert their routine to bulldoze dirt where it can do most to squelch the flame. And it almost surely means that residents of the area will initiate a new round of protests to town officials who can do little but sympathize.

Manager Bowen has said that he will push for police action if dump burners can be caught in the act, but the town can ill-afford to withdraw protection from residential and commercial districts for concentrated dump surveillance.

How about it? If people care as much as they claim about conditions at the dump, it looks like they are going to have to take a hand in improving them.

If every dumper can keep a tight fist 'round his own matches and a sharp eye out for anyone bent on ignoring the regulations, it seems like an intellectual community like this ought to be able to whip the dump problem!

For its part, the town must come up with the answer to the control of flying paper. The fewer the fires, the more of this there is to waft over the fences and though it isn't nearly as disagreeable as the smell of chemical smoke, it is more difficult to clear away.

Frank Communication

The difficulties arising within the Andover Council of Churches over possible membership for the Unitarian Universalist Church serve to point up the many doctrinal barriers that continue to separate denominations in what too many are loosely terming these "ecumenical" times.

To observe churches squabbling over a theological technicality is offensive to anyone interested in seeing the moral concepts of the major religious faiths spread to influence the world for mutual good.

But lost in the verbal exchange is the single factor which lends any dignity to the public rinsing of so much church linen: it may not be polite to air religious differences in these times, but it is healthy to be reminded that this is a country where the right to believe and disbelieve is cherished. It may not be circumspect for the Andover Council of Churches to restrict its membership to congregations which accept the Divinity of Christ, but Thank God it has the right to do so. Equally inherent is the right of the Unitarian Church to stand apart from this sort of union.

It has been clearly demonstrated that the Lutheran Church and the Unitarian Church cannot both be full members of the Andover Council, under its revised constitution, unless one or the other congregation stands ready to make a theological compromise on attitudes that represent denominational conflicts. This is the immediate tangle, but it is one that can recur in an expanding community. And this appears to be the basic reason for the Council's move to "define" itself.

The definition having been made, the community at large can now hope that the town's church leaders will set aside disunity to strengthen whatever lines of interfaith communication are feasible in a society that

Beauty At The Dump

TO REMIND RESIDENTS to "Keep Wayland Beautiful", an array of local art work was displayed there recently against the background of the town dump. Hung on the chain-link fence, the paintings planted the thought that a community should try to beautify itself - even at the dump.

guarantees religious freedom to all.

If church people cannot be frank and open, right here in Andover, about what divides and motivates them, how useful is it for divergent hierarchies to subscribe to the principle of broader understanding?

Clean-Up Week

Starting Monday the town is going to lend homeowners a hand with spring cleaning.

It is a once-a-year opportunity to unload the clutter that catches up with most of us after broken toys and burned out grills and empty paint cans get pushed aside for awhile.

Take note of the pick-up schedule and put your trash out in plenty of time for the municipal truck service. Summer is bound to look a lot more promising with a good yard-to-attic clean-out behind you.

Down the Years with The Townsman

75 Years Ago - May, 1890

A queer and pretty little sight is the growing of a dandelion plant about half way up the tree which stands in front of the Post Office. The plant, which has two or three blossoms, nestles snugly at the point where two branches meet.

On Saturday afternoon, Mrs. Effie Dresser Wilde gave Abbot Academy a valuable and delightful talk on dress and dress reform. Mrs. Wilde has for some time been thoroughly interested in Mrs. Jenness Miller's movement, and in affection for the school of which she is a graduate, kindly came to waken practical interest in this reform among the present members of the school. Mrs. Wilde brought with her several charming costumes, combining comfort and economy with beauty, and proving beyond question that dress reform need not mean dowdiness.

The first celebration of Memorial Day in Andover was held May 30, 1868. A procession of between four and five hundred was formed headed by twelve or fifteen students of the Seminary and Academy who had served in the war.

A recent act of the Legislature requires that all public schools devote the last regular session nearest Memorial Day, or a portion, thereof, to such exercises as will teach pupils to love their country and its free institutions.

50 Years Ago - May, 1915

One of the worst brush fires of the season occurred last Saturday afternoon at the rear of J. H. Playdon's house in Frye Village. The fire department responded with the chemical shortly after one o'clock but the fire had assumed dangerous proportions and it was found necessary to call the combination pump.

Andover people will have the novelty of a jitney-bus as a line is to be started between here and Lawrence in a few days. Henry Shorten of Abbot St. will be the proprietor of the line and he has purchased a Packard touring car from Myerscough & Buchan. Regular trips will be made and the fare will be five cents.

The Board of Fire Engineers of the town have organized for the coming year and Charles S. Buchan has been appointed to succeed Lewis T. Hardy as chief.

Tomorrow afternoon just look in at the Historical rooms, 71 Main St., see where some of your money has gone, have a cup of tea and thank your stars that you live in a town where an effort is being made to transmit traditions to future generations. The rooms will be

Librarians' Workshop
Miss Elizabeth Russell, Supervisor of Work with Children, and Mrs. Margaret Berry, South School Librarian, recently attended the spring meeting of nearby school librarians. The school libraries of Arlington were hosts. The working session included a formal presentation of projects and library programs which were unusually successful and interesting during the past year. Buzz sessions continued through tea which was served at the Thompson School. Discussion continued informally at a sandwich supper at Robinson Library.

Yesterday Andover's school librarians met with Mrs. Berry at Memorial Hall Library to learn more about the ideas exchanged at Arlington which can be used in the Andover elementary school library program. Mrs. Berry mentioned as an example some topics used in Arlington for an academically talented sixth grade class. The library is a laboratory for the study of Greek choral readings, the poetry of E. E. Cummings, and other modern writers such as Hemingway and Steinbeck. One fruitful idea which is being tried now at South School in connection with the study of medieval history is a library project on ballads and ballad-makers. Other ideas will be used in the elementary libraries during the coming school year.

Spring Housecleaning?
Cleaning those old books out of the attic? Before throwing them away, why not check to see if you have any children's books by Edna A. Brown. Mrs. Brown was formerly a librarian at Memorial Hall Library in Andover. She also found time to write fourteen books between 1912-1922. Now these are out of print.

For sentimental reasons, Mrs. Brown's grandchildren would like to have copies. Could you locate some? Miss Elizabeth Russell, children's librarian, will forward any such books to the family. The list of wanted titles is: Archer and the Prophet; Arnold's Little Brother; At the Butterfly House; Chinese Kitten; Four Gordons; How Many Miles to Babylon; Polly's Shop; Robin Hollow; Silver Bear; Spanish Chest; Three Gates; When Max Came; Whistling Rock; Uncle David's Boys.

If you read Edna Brown's books as a child and would like to see them again, ask for them at the desk in the Children's Room.

Morse One Of Top GOP Vote Getters

An Analysis of Congressional Quarterly reveals that Congressman John V. Lindsay, whose candidacy for mayor of New York City was announced Thursday, and Congressman Bradford Morse were the top GOP vote getters in contested 1964 Congressional elections.

Morse, who has represented Andover since 1960, ran 39.2 percent ahead of the national Republican ticket, topped only by Lindsay's 43.4 percent.

Sunday Service Begins Memorial Week Events

Two events Sunday will serve as a preliminary to Memorial Day observances in Andover.

First, veterans of all faiths will attend the annual Memorial Sunday service, to be held this year at Free Christian Church beginning at 10 a.m. Participants are to meet at 9:45 a.m. at American Legion headquarters on Park St.

Later the same day, at 1:30 p.m., members of American Legion Post 8 will meet at the Legion Hall to assist in decorating the graves of former comrades in arms, some 350 of them.

Plans are now complete for the Memorial Day parade and services to be held May 31. The parade will begin at 9:30 a.m. and feature a military detachment from Fort Devens, delegations from veterans organizations and five bands, including three local school bands and the Clan McPherson pipers. The parade route will run from the corner of Florence and Elm Sts., down Elm to Main, to Chestnut to Whittier and Memorial Hall Auditorium where the combined veterans organizations will conduct the main memorial of the day.

Participating in this service will be the combined Andover High School bands, officials of American Legion Post 8 and the Andover V.F.W. Post, Philip K. Allen, chairman of the Board of Selectmen and students William Arrand and Judith A. Kane of Andover High School who will deliver Lincoln's Gettysburg Address and "In Flanders Field".

The speaker of the day will be the Hon. Albert P. Pettoruto, a member of the state legislature.

The traditional services will be held at other war memorials located at Phillips Academy, Memorial Hall Library and Spring Grove Cemetery.

Planning Board Clears 3 Plans

The Planning Board gave its approval Monday to three plans, one a sub-division involving a total of 50 houses.

Approved was a River Rd. project planned by J. C. Ryan Construction. The sub-division itself will include just 37 houses, but with the frontage lots involved, the development will include 50 homes.

Also approved: the road layout for the garden apartments at the corner of High and Haverhill Sts., and a one-lot sub-division off Lowell St. The sub-division, in this case a paper transaction, makes possible a turnabout access off Brown St. to 10 acres of land cut off from the street when a Lowell St. property owner added to his holdings.

All three approvals were given with stipulations.

Membership Still Church Council Issue

The Andover Council of Churches voted at its annual meeting Thursday to admit the Unitarian Universalist Church to membership, but Rev. Keith Munson indicated later in the week that he is not certain his congregation will accept.

Accusing the Council of "trickery" and "deceit" in its handling of the Unitarian request for affiliation, Munson said he could take no other view of the church group's vote some weeks ago to require members to accept Christ as "Lord and Saviour". After establishing what he terms a "trinitarian" barrier to Unitarian membership, he said this week, "they turn around and ask us to join."

At the time the Unitarians first applied for membership no such restriction was in the Council constitution, but a committee was in the process of working on revisions. The membership request was tabled, according to the Council, to give the organization an opportunity to "define" itself. This procedure, according to one official, was thought to be fairer.

Reporting that his reaction to the belated invitation was a personal one, Munson said that the final decision on whether or not to join the Council would be up to the congregation of his church. An affiliate membership, which would not require agreement with the preamble to the constitution is possible.

PTA Holding County Fair

The Twilight Twirlers will stage a square and round dance exhibition Saturday afternoon at the Shawsheen School PTA-sponsored "County Fair."

This featured event will go on at 1 p.m., but the fair opens at 11 a.m. and will run until 4 p.m. A poster contest to boost interest in the fair and to help with advertising was held this month for sixth grade pupils at the elementary school.

WE Official On Committee

Daniel B. Armstrong, 40 Linwood St., a management official at Western Electric's Merrimack Valley works has been named to a management engineering survey group to assist Gov. John Volpe in streamlining the operation of state government departments.

The first emphasis will be on personnel utilization which ties in with Armstrong's experience as chief of industrial engineering wage practices and wage incentives at WE.

The "efficiency" study will take an estimated 80-90 days and executives involved will be paid on a dollar-a-year basis. Armstrong is one of two Western men assigned to the project.

Art-Music Are On AHS Program

The art exhibit will consist of paintings and sculpture done by students taught by Miss Frances Dalton.
